Sixteen Deaths Caused by Heat and 12 by Auto Crashes; Sizzler Is Broken

Highways Jammed

Traffic Fatalities Gain as Those Fleeing Heat Speed Along

Albany, N. Y., June 30 (P)—New York's ebbing heat wave left a grim reminder today—16 deaths attributed to abnormal temperatures and 23 others resulting from week-end accidents, 12 involving automobiles.

Slight temperature change was expected today, but scattered showers by night and tomorrow were likely to ease further a dangerous forest fire situation, already alleviated somewhat by rains.

State Forest Fire Control Superintendent Kinne F. Williams reported only two blazes—at Stone Dam and Conifer, both in St. Lawrence county—said they had been held two days without moving and predicted their control would be so tight within 24 hours there would be "no danger of spreading." The Conifer fire burned over 2,500 acres.

Midnight temperatures ranged from 64 at Ticonderoga to 79 at Bear Mountain, with cooling breezes after the mercury sank as much as 15 degrees below Saturday's top marks to break the four-day sizzler.

Thousands of motorists, however, jammed the highways, contributing heavily to the fatality total. Accidental deaths by communities:

Rome—Maurice Watt, Jr., Syracuse; drowned in Lake Delta.

Massena—Irma Brainard, 37, killed in auto collision.

Thendara—Harold Roberts, 40, Syracuse, killed in plane fall.

Otter Lake—Clarence Luley, 27, Utica, drowned.

New Boston—Mrs. Elizabeth Mahar, 81, struck by car.

Syracuse—Antoinette Trippoli, 10, two-car crash.

Pulaski—Robert Rose and Robert Thompson, both of Syracuse, plane crashed near Pulaski Airport.

Shodack Landing—Clifford Haberkern, 9, hit by auto.

Camden—Arthur Durgee, 18, struck by lightning.

Cheektowaga—Alvin Bronstein, 33, electrocuted as he pointed out short circuit to fellow machine shop employee.

Buffalo—Donald Panzer, 11, drowned while swimming in Barge Canal basin.

Canandaigua—Charles Handrahan, 32, struck by bus.

Auburn—Charles Malley, and his sister, Margaret, Meriden, Conn., three-auto crash; Donald F. Green, auto struck tree.

Altamont—Dorothy Briggs, 26, Cortland, auto overturned.

New York—Simon Brumberger, 20, auto overturned.

Bainbridge—William Moyer, 3, drowned in creek near home.

Nanuet—Ida Bogert, 25, Paterboro, N. J., killed by lightning while sitting under a tree during a rain-storm.

Williamsville—Joseph Dehlinger, 62, struck by automobile.

Batavia—William Heywood, 74, Stafford, hit by car.

Town of Lancaster—Mrs. Helen Wallace, 54, Buffalo, automobile-truck collision.

Reckless Driver Pays Fine of $10

Car Struck Bakery Truck at Top of Port Ewen Hill

Charged with reckless driving, after he is alleged to have struck a Cushman's bakery truck near the top of cemetery hill in Port Ewen this morning, William Malkiewicz of Mt. Vernon paid a fine of $10 when arraigned before Justice John O. Beaver of the town of Esopus.

Deputy Winne, who investigated the collision, was told that Malkiewicz tried to pass the truck, but found the middle strip of the highway occupied by another car, which had passed a parked truck and sideswiped the bakery truck in attempting to avoid a collision.

The bakery truck had its brake cable cut and left the road, passing between two concrete posts, down a bank and into an apple orchard.

The driver, George Lieberman of Poughkeepsie, hailed a passing car and took after Malkiewicz, who had gone on and who was stopped after he had crossed the Rondout Creek Bridge.

Will Register Wednesday

Registration for summer school students at Kingston High School will be held Wednesday morning. Students are requested to report at the school at 8:30 o'clock.

The school will be in session from July 3 to August 22, inclusive. The sessions of the school will be held on every school day from 8 o'clock to 12 noon with the exception of Friday, July 4. No registrations will be accepted after Monday, July 7.

Tuesday Is Registration Day for Men in Kingston

Tuesday is Registration Day throughout the nation, when all men who have attained the age of 21 years must call at the nearest draft office and register. In Kingston the place of registration will be in the office of the Kingston Selective Service Board, Room 2, in the central post office building on Broadway.

William B. Byrne, who is serving as acting chairman of the local draft board, during the illness of Chairman Samuel Stern, in commenting on Tuesday's activities, said: "All men who have attained the age of 21 years, as well as alien men who entered this country since October 16, 1940, who have reached the age of 21 years and who have not reached their 36th birthday, and also all men who failed to comply with the Selective Service Act of 1940, must register."

Acting Chairman Byrne said that the local board, aided by the advisory board and staff, is charged with the duty of taking care of every detail in connection with this second registration. The local board requests the public to cooperate Tuesday by not making personal or telephone calls for information which can be taken care of on any other day.

Defense Blights Fireworks Plan

Municipal Display Affected by National Program

There will be no municipal display of fireworks in Kingston this year. The Common Council will meet in regular monthly session Tuesday evening, but the only important matter expected to be brought up at that time is the adoption of the school budget.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman when questioned about the city holding a fireworks display in the public parks this year, said that the plan had been considered, but when it was learned that all cities were being urged not to hold such displays as the fireworks manufacturers were busy turning out materials needed in the national home defense program.

Owing to the war in China, the Chinese have been turning all their attention to turning out war materials and not fireworks, while in this country there is but a limited supply of fireworks.

The fireworks manufacturers, a recent survey showed, are busy manufacturing rockets, flares, etc. for the army and navy.

Heavy Fine Faces Offenders

Albany, N. Y., June 30 (P)—A new statute which snuffs the fuse on most of the traditional Fourth of July fireworks, gives New York prospects of its quietest and safest Independence Day Friday.

Police throughout the state plan strict enforcement of the law which bans indiscriminate sale and use of explosives and makes an onlooker of the small boy who used to "shoot the works"—and often himself.

Enacted last year but having its first practical effect Friday, the law permits only licensed, public displays of fireworks supervised by experts in their handling. Violations are punishable by maximums of $100 fine, imprisonment for 90 days or both.

Ignace Jan Paderewski Dies

First President of Polish Republic and One of World's Greatest Musicians Dies at Age of 80

New York, June 30 (P)—Ignace Jan Paderewski, 80, who ruled a piano for 60 years and a nation for one, died last night.

Pneumonia struck down the first president of the Polish republic and one of the greatest musicians of all time after a two-day illness.

By his side in the Hotel Buckingham was his sister, Mme. Antonina Wilkonska; his doctor, Dr. Asa L. Lincoln, and his aide, Sylvian Starackacz.

The white-haired patriot was stricken with a cold last week and, ignoring his doctor's orders, made one of his many recent public appearances to help raise funds for starving countrymen.

Three days ago he became gravely ill and yesterday afternoon he was placed in an oxygen tent. He breathed his last just before midnight.

The man who was to rank with Liszt and Rubinstein as the three supreme masters of the keyboard was born November 6, 1860, in the tiny village of Kurilowka in Russian Poland, and was not three years old before tragedy began plaguing him as it did most of his life.

Cossacks ravaged the town, sent his father into Siberian exile.

At six, Paderewski took his first piano lessons from a wandering fiddler, at 12 he gave his first recital, at 16 made his first concert tour. At 20, just when he was

Selectees Already Active Probably Will Not Be Held in Army for Extra Period

Washington, June 30 (P)—The army probably will call up about 50,000 selective service trainees a month during the last half of this year, and a big percentage of them will come from the ranks of the 750,000 men of 21 who must register tomorrow.

Selective service headquarters, it was learned today, has worked out a system of interspersing the newest registrants in the list of those who enrolled last October.

The effect will be to make many of tomorrow's young registrants quickly available for military service—a welcome result to the army high command which regards men just turned 21 as ideal soldering material.

As final arrangements were completed for the second selective service registration, selectees already in training received a good official indication that their tour of service would not be extended beyond the year fixed by law.

Executive Order

The temporary White House at Hyde Park, N. Y., released an executive order by President Roosevelt yesterday, which fixed 900,000 as the number of trainees to be inducted into the land forces in the fiscal year which starts tomorrow. The number is the statutory maximum.

William D. Hassett, the President's secretary, said that the army would call on the selective service manpower pool for new trainees as those now in service finished their year's duty.

Asked whether this was "absolute evidence" that men now serving would be released when they finish their year, Hassett replied with an unqualified "yes." Afterward he added he was not a military lawyer.

Details Not Announced

Selective service officials said that the new names would be mixed with the old ones in a fair and impartial manner. Details were not announced but the general principle is expected to be somewhat as follows:

Tydings Declares Jackson Is Unfit For Supreme Court

His Character, Philosophy and Judicial Makeup Are Against Him, Democrat Says

Washington, June 30 (P)—Opposing the nomination of Robert H. Jackson to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, Senator Tydings (D-Md.) told a senate judiciary subcommittee today that the attorney general was unfit for the court "by character, philosophy and judicial temperament."

Tydings said that Jackson had rejected his request that Drew Pearson and Robert Allen, newspaper columnists, be prosecuted for a 1939 radio broadcast in which they said Tydings had called upon the Works Progress Administration to build a road and a yacht basin on his estate.

Says Assertion 'Silly'

The Maryland senator said the assertion was "silly" and amounted "to charging me with larceny."

Chairman Hatch (D-NM) of the subcommittee put into the record a letter from Jackson to Tydings declining to prosecute Pearson and Allen. The letter, dated June 11, 1940, said:

"You have told me that you have other cases that you would also want prosecuted after this one. To use the power of the government in a campaign of this kind would, in my opinion, discredit the law enforcement agencies if unsuccessful, would constitute harassment not consistent with our support of freedom of the press. That this freedom is sometimes abused does not lessen the necessity for its protection."

"For these reasons, I must adhere to the established policy of declining to prosecute criminal libel cases where there is open to the individual a civil remedy, and where there has been no breach of the peace or other public injury done by the libel."

Trio Is Reported In Fair Condition

Car Overturns Between Hurley, Kingston Sunday

John L. Harrington of 54 Washington street, Farmingdale, L. I., and his two young daughters, Doris, 13, and Gail, four, were reported in fair condition at the Kingston Hospital this morning, following an accident on Route 209 between Hurley and Kingston about 7 o'clock last night.

The injured people were taken to the hospital by Mr. and Mrs. Lester Schoonmaker of Napanoch, who came along just after the accident. Harrington, who is an airplane mechanic at Mitchell Field, was suffering from a possible skull fracture. Doris had bruises and lacerations on the forehead and Gail was bruised and had a possible fracture of the right arm.

Deputy Sheriff McCullough and Young said that Harrington's car left the pavement on the turn south of the Harford gas station as it was proceeding toward Kingston. It ploughed along the bank for a considerable distance, turned over and finally came to a stop on its wheels.

19 Persons Convicted

In the years the act has been in effect, Hoover pointed out, only 19 persons have been convicted under it.

Only two of the current suspects were native Americans, one each having been born in France, Russia, South Africa, Austria and Moravia, besides the 22 German-born prisoners. All but two of the foreign-born, however, were naturalized Americans, and even beginning to win acclaim, he lost through death, his bride less than a year.

Paderewski made his first American tour in 1891, and in 19 such tours he never returned home with less than a profit of $250,000.

It was estimated that his fingers earned him $5,000,000 in America. But although famed as a pianist and composer—his minuet is popular—(Continued on Page Five)

Wallkill Resident, 19, Is Drowned In Orange County; Body Recovered

Aubrey Edward Harris, 19, an employee of the DuPont-Fabrikoid Company in Newburgh, who resided with an uncle near Wallkill, was drowned Friday evening about 8 o'clock at Chadwick's Pond at Leptondale, Orange county. The body was not recovered until Saturday afternoon when Trooper Adams, who with others was engaged in grappling for the body, brought the body to the surface from 15 feet of water.

Harris with Nelson Beck of R. D. 1, Newburgh, had gone swimming in the pond when Harris was seized with a cramp. He disappeared from view of his companion and when the alarm was given

NAZIS HALF WAY TO MOSCOW AND CLAIM LWOW, MINSK FALL

Two Bombsight Workers Are Held in Spy Roundup

Agents Hold 29 Persons Under World War Act

Chief Attention Is Centered Upon German-born Draftsman and New York Native; Steward Is Seized at Sandy Hook

New York, June 30 (P)—Among the 29 persons arrested in the government's spectacular week-end roundup of suspected spies, it was learned authoritatively today, were two technicians described as having been for years closely associated with the manufacture of secret army bombsights.

Government agents declined to comment directly but they showed clearly that they were centering their attention on these two men: Herman Lang, 40, German-born draftsman who was said to have worked since 1934 as a factory inspector of the famous Norden bombsight.

Everett Minster Roeder, 47, New York city native, reliably reported to have been a draftsman since 1927 at the Sperry Gyroscope plant in Brooklyn where the famed Sperry bombsights are made.

Meanwhile eight federal agents boarded the Moore-McCormack liner Uruguay when it arrived off Sandy Hook this morning and removed a 50-year-old bedroom steward, described as a naturalized citizen of German birth.

Comment Is Refused

The agents refused to say whether there was any connection between his seizure and the roundup of spy suspects.

Lang and Roeder were among the group of 26 men and three women arrested in a swift climax to a two-year investigation of espionage.

Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation led by Director J. Edgar Hoover seized 24 in homes and taverns in four states. Five others already were in custody on other charges.

Seventeen of the group, which included 22 German natives, were scheduled to be arraigned shortly after noon today before a U. S. commissioner in Brooklyn on specific charges of conspiring to engage in espionage activities in the United States.

U. S. Attorney Harold Kennedy said he would ask for high bail pending presentation of the case to the grand jury tomorrow.

Assistant U. S. Attorney General Wendell Berge, in charge of criminal investigation, said he had instructed Kennedy and James M. McInerney, special assistant for Washington, to prosecute the case "vigorously and without reservation."

"This case involves one of the greatest counter-espionage efforts ever made by a law enforcement agency," Berge said. "It should reassure the public that the Department of Justice is on the job."

Hoover said the G-men shadowed the suspects for two years and finally "led them into a fly-trap."

Warrants issued here charged the prisoners with efforts to transmit information to foreign nations concerning cargoes on British-bound ships, new developments in United States naval, army and aircraft products—especially the latter—and transport by courier samples of latest armaments.

The alleged spy ring used secret inks for couriers traveling across the Atlantic by Clipper planes.

Hoover declared a short-wave radio with ocean-spanning range was found in the room of one suspect.

Besides the 18 taken in the metropolitan area and the five already in federal custody, four were arrested in New Jersey and one each in Michigan and Wisconsin.

Hoover said he was confident that the speedy arraignment of the New York prisoners would be followed shortly by that of the others, who will be brought to Brooklyn for trial.

Maximum penalty for conviction of espionage or conspiracy to commit espionage under the 1917 federal espionage act is 20 years' imprisonment.

60 Days in Jail; Ferguson Is Given Watched 'Rescue'

William Ferguson, 18, of 19 Ann street, had the unique experience early Sunday morning of watching police, firemen and the emergency crew of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation grappling "for his body" in the Rondout creek off the Stone dock at the foot of Hasbrouck avenue, but the experience had an unexpected ending when he was placed under arrest on a charge of public intoxication.

This morning in police court Judge Matthew V. Cahill sentenced Ferguson to 60 days in the county jail.

According to the story told to Judge Cahill the youth, accompanied by Edward Coddington and two young girls, was on the Stone dock when Ferguson said he was going to jump in the creek.

His companions grabbed him, but he wrenched loose and plunged off the dock into the water. When he disappeared from view and failed to appear at the surface Coddington and the girls became alarmed and notified the police.

A radio car was rushed to the dock as well as members of the Kingston fire department, while

Nazis Sight Smolensk On Highway

Russians Say German Advance Units Are Trapped After Deep Penetrations

Finns Go to War

Artillery Roars Along 600-Mile Finnish Front

(By The Associated Press)

German Panzer columns, following the Napoleonic road to Moscow, were reported to have smashed through Russia's Red army defenses approximately half way to the Soviet capital today.

The German high command said the sweep of the 9-day-old Nazi onslaught had already captured Lwow, former Poland, and a Berlin spokesman reported the fall of Minsk, 200 miles inside the old frontier of the U. S. S. R.

The Nazi spokesman indicated that Adolf Hitler's invasion forces were already in sight of Smolensk, 200 miles east of Minsk on the highway to Moscow.

Smolensk is about the half-way mark to the Soviet capital.

In a diplomatic phase of the war picture, France broke off diplomatic relations with Russia this morning with the official explanation that "Soviet diplomatic and consular agents in France were carrying out activities against the public order and security of the state."

It was the first time France had reached an open break against any of Germany's enemies.

In a diplomatic phase of the war picture, France broke off diplomatic relations with Russia this morning with the official explanation that "Soviet diplomatic and consular agents in France were carrying out activities against the public order and security of the state."

It was this sector, less than two years ago, that the routed Polish army was forced to capitulate to German forces who later yielded it to Russia when Poland was partitioned.

While the Germans claimed a rapid-fire series of successes, it was apparent that with the exception of the Minsk area, Russia's Red armies still were fighting west of the 1939 Soviet frontiers.

In addition, a Moscow communique declared that German attempts to knife across the Karelian isthmus from Finland, now fighting at the side of Germany, and to land troops by sea at Viipuri were repulsed.

Viipuri is on the Gulf of Finland, only 74 miles by railroad from Leningrad, Russia's second largest city.

The Soviet war bulletin also asserted that the Red army still was holding against violent attacks ranging from Murmansk, on the Barents Sea, to the vicinity of Minsk and on south through the Luck-Lwow gateway to the great wheatfields of the Ukraine.

In this region, between Luck and Lwow, a flaming battle of 4,000 German and Soviet tanks raged into its fifth day with the Nazi juggernaut seeking to break through to the Ukraine capital of Kiev, 250 miles eastward.

The Berlin radio announced the occupation of Luck, 100 miles northwest of Lwow, but this could not be confirmed. The radio, in a news broadcast in Spanish, further claimed that Nazi troops had occupied Minsk. A German spokesman, however, said there was no confirmation.

The spokesman said Minsk, 20 miles inside the old Russian frontier, was seriously menaced by German armored divisions and that Nazi motorized units had seized control of the head of the Minsk-Moscow motor highway.

West of Minsk, in the Bialystok sector of old Poland, the Germans declared two Soviet armies were trapped. Military sources in Vichy heard the two armies numbered 400,000 men, but they gave them a chance to break through.

Advance Units Trapped

By contrast, Russian military dispatches asserted that advance German Panzer forces in the Minsk area had been trapped by Soviet counter-attacks.

The Russians conceded that German columns had penetrated into Lithuania a third of the way to Leningrad and across Poland almost a third of the way to Moscow.

On the Viipuri front, the Russians said, 300 Nazis were killed in a single assault and the entire

Ominous Note Is Sounded for Red Army in Nazi Report

Two Soviet Units Of 400,000 Men Reported Circled

Figures About Airplane Losses Should Not Be Taken Too Seriously for Either Side

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT (Freeman Special News Service)

One of the most interesting points in the battle of communications which began in full force over the week-end on the Russo-German conflict is Nazi acknowledgment of a type of offensive defense on an extremely powerful scale, something the new German army has not before faced.

But the most ominous note for the Red army, now that the Germans have made their claims in a sudden stream of delayed communications, is the alleged German encirclement of two Soviet armies, of perhaps 400,000 men, near Bialystok.

Astronomical figures for airplanes destroyed, given by both sides, must not now be taken too seriously. If this war has proved anything at all, it is the consistent unreliability of estimates of one opponent's aerial losses by the other, especially when they are based on the reports of pilots engaged in a large-scale battle.

Encircling Movement

It can now be seen that on last Wednesday the Red army, having absorbed the initial shock of the German assault, was able to attempt a major counter-attack on the Polish front. This, the Germans confess, was an encircling movement involving "countless armored cars" and was designed to cut off the advance Nazi panzer spearheads from the mass of following infantry.

The German communiqué acknowledged that a considerable effort by both fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns was required to combat this tactic, thus showing that the Red army's counter-attack was well supported from the air. But, in a communiqué dealing with the action two days before, the Germans claimed they already had destroyed 2,582 planes, which would certainly have been a considerable part of the Red air force's first-line strength.

Fury Is Revealed

German figures for armored vehicles destroyed—a total of 2,233 up to Sunday—betray the fury of the Soviet counter-blow, which must have carried the Red army tank units well behind the advanced German lines. These figures are much more likely to be accurate than those on airplanes.

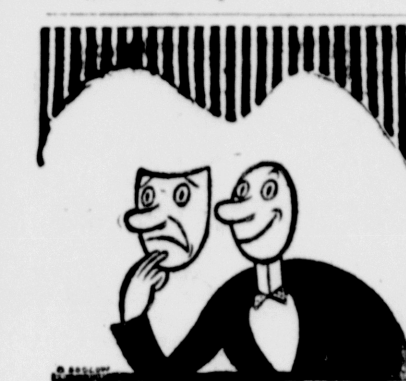

The success of the Soviet counter-attacks is yet problematical. Moscow insists that the panzer divisions which have knifed into the Minsk area, on the Napoleonic road to Moscow, are left without support and in a desperate position. On the other hand, the German claim of entrapment of the two Soviet armies, southwest of Minsk, receives some support in London.

These troops are blocked to the south by the Pinsk (Pripiet) marshes, to the west by the vast mass of German infantry, to the east by the Germans' panzer columns. Unless these panzers can be quickly smashed or scattered to the extent that the endangered armies can fight their way east to their main lines, the Red army will suffer a tremendous loss to its power of resistance.

This might make all the difference between a six-week German conquest of Russia and a costly, wasting fight of many months.

Machinists Return To Jobs at Coast Shipyards, Docks

C. I. O. Members Reaffirm Earlier Decision; A.F.L. Strike Occurs in Michigan Plant

(By The Associated Press)

Machinists who had been on strike since May 10 headed back to work today on $500,000,000 of defense production in 11 shipyards and drydocks of the San Francisco Bay area.

An earlier decision to return to their jobs was reaffirmed yesterday by 600 C. I. O. members. A few days before, 1,100 A. F. L. machinists had decided to end their walkout.

All will work under a coastwide master contract, covering all shipyards, which provides payment of $1.12 an hour and pay and a half for overtime. The strikers had asked for $1.15 and double overtime pay. While working they will continue negotiations on their demands.

A breakdown of negotiations for a new contract led to a strike call yesterday by A. F. L.'s United Automobile Workers in the wire division of the Electric Auto Light Corporation, Port Huron, Mich., which has orders from the navy for electrical supplies.

Wants 10-Cent Raise

The union wants a raise of 10 cents an hour for all employees, a union preferential clause or union shop agreement, and a 5 per cent premium on the base wage for night workers. The present basic rate of pay for the plant's 650 employees was not disclosed.

C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers at the White Motor Company, Cleveland, decided yesterday to take a strike vote Wednesday. This action was voted by 2,500 men after Richard E. Reisinger, union regional director, informed them at a mass meeting the company had turned down a request for a general wage increase of 10 cents an hour. Present wage rates were not made known.

The company is making trucks and "half-trucks" similar to scout cars—for the army. Week-end strike settlements included these:

The Grain Processors' Union (A. F. L.) and the W. K. Kellogg Company of Battle Creek signed a new contract which ended a one-week walkout. The contract provided undisclosed wage increases and a 10 per cent increase in the minimum pay of 41 cents an hour for women and 75 cents for men. The company holds orders for breakfast food for the army.

C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers voted to return to work today at the parts plant of the Chrysler Corporation, Marysville, Mich., and to continue negotiations over pay and other demands. Union members walked out of the factory Friday after four women employees were sent home. Officials of corporation, which has truck parts orders for the army, said the women "refused to work" and denied union assertions that a work "speed up" had been instituted.

C. I. O.'s United Mine Workers decided subject to ratification by the rank and file, to end the strike which began Thursday at the Dow Chemical Company, Midland, Mich., which makes three-fourths of the magnesium used in the airplane industry. The company agreed to re-employ all workers without discrimination. The walkout was called after the two-week suspension of a union steward and for whom the company said was insubordination and the union attributed to union activity.

The joint executive committee of the Transport Workers Union (C. I. O.) ratified an agreement to avert a strike in New York's subways and resume negotiations for adjustment in wages and working hours for 32,000 workers. The union's main demands were for recognition as bargaining agent and a signed contract covering all employees.

the emergency crew of the Central Hudson also responded. Men in rowboats were out in the creek and had been grappling for the body for a considerable time when Ferguson re-appeared suddenly on the dock.

He told the police that he swam across the creek to Sleightsburch and recrossed on the Rondout Creek Bridge and rejoined his friends on the dock.

Financial and Commercial

New York, June 30 (P)—Leading stocks missed fire on feeble recovery attempts in today's market.

While a few oils, coppers and specialties managed to step up moderately, many issues were fractionally lower near the final hour. Dealings were negligible throughout, transfers were at the rate of approximately 300,000 shares, one of the smallest turn-overs for the year to date.

The main buying handicap, brokers suggested, was the lack of positive information regarding the course of the Russian-German conflict. Business developments, however, remained hopeful in individual cases.

Bonds and commodities were uneven. Cottonseed oil futures broke the limit at the opening in reflection of the federal move to peg prices of this staple. Wheat rallied after an early dip.

Among stocks in the backward column were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, General Motors, Anaconda, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber, Tenn. Martin, United Aircraft and U. S. Gypsum.

Given occasional support were American Telephone, Standard Oil (N. J.), American Smelting, Western Union, Montgomery Ward and American Can.

Faltering in the curb were Brewster Aero, Gulf Oil and Phoenix Securities. Calumet Sugar and International Petroleum Improved.

Nazis Are Half Way to Moscow

German landing party put ashore near Viipuri was wiped out.

As the second week of fighting on the eastern front began amid a barrage of special German high command announcements detailing Nazi successes thus far, Finland and Slovakia pitched in actively against Russia at various points along the far-flung front.

Cannon blazed all along the 600-mile Russian-Finnish frontier as the Finns, heeding an appeal from Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim to follow him in a "holy war" against the Russians, cast off their policy of passive resistance.

The Slovak high command declared that the forces of the tiny state, which is all Adolf Hitler left of Czechoslovakia, had driven deep into Soviet territory to seize prisoners and material.

German Claims

The German high command, in one of a series of 12 communiques issued at intervals over a four and half hour period yesterday, said two Russian armies were trapped (Vichy military sources estimated the number of men involved at 400,000) in the Bialystok area before Minsk.

The high command claimed that 2,233 Russian tanks, 4,107 Russian planes and 1,297 Russian armored cars had been destroyed during the first week of war; that 40,000 Russian prisoners and 600 big guns had been captured. All this at a cost of 150 German planes.

The Red army called these claims "boastful humbug" and gave its own figures: 2,500 German tanks destroyed to 900 Russian; 1,500 German planes destroyed to 850 Russian; 30,000 German prisoners taken to 15,000 Russian.

"New and great success is in preparation," the German high command declared. The Syrian campaign, entered its fourth week with allied forces reported pushing toward Homs as Vichy troops apparently sought to hold the core of the Lebanon area from Beirut to Tripoli.

The home of General Henri Dentz, Vichy commander in the Levant, was reported attacked by British bombers and five members of his guard were killed and four wounded. The general was not at home.

British Middle East headquarters reported that British troops had completed the encirclement of Palmyra, French stronghold in the heart of the Syrian desert.

In the Damascus and coastal sectors, the British tallied "further advances."

Attacks Beaten Off

The French said British attacks had been beaten off with heavy losses all along the Syrian front, with the fiercest action raging on the road from British-captured Damascus to Beirut, capital of Lebanon.

In Ankara, Turkish sources predicted that Turkey's reply to French appeals for cooperation in the defense of Syria would sidestep any possibility of involvement in the war.

The Turks declared that under no circumstances would the Ankara government permit France to send war supplies or troops across Turkish soil to reinforce the hard-driven defenders of France's Middle East mandates.

In the western air war, R.A.F. bombers renewed the attack on Germany after bad weather Saturday night had interrupted their series of 17 straight night assaults in a row. The London air ministry reported that R.A.F. bombs started "very large fires" and inflicted "great damage" at the ports of Hamburg and Bremen, and that the raiders also pounded Bremerhaven, Emden, and Den Helder in the Netherlands. Eleven R.A.F. planes were acknowledged lost.

The Germans said 13 British bombers were shot down last night over northwestern Germany. The British said one German raider was shot down in light nocturnal assaults on England.

In the respite granted by the German attack on Russia, England indicated it hoped to make hay. Lord Beaverbrook, minister of state, was made minister of supply with wide responsibility for making war goods in all Britain's factories.

The war also had repercussions in the western hemisphere as the F.B.I. arrested 29 persons, including 22 natives of Germany, it had shadowed for two years on charges of espionage.

Drunken Driving Case Opens Today In Country Court

Austin Macdonald Charged With Driving Motor Vehicle While Intoxicated

Trial of the charge against Austin Macdonald, driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, was taken up this morning in county court with County Judge Flannery of Dutchess county on the bench.

It is charged that Macdonald drove his car on East O'Reilly street on the evening of May 17, 1940, while intoxicated and the present indictment charges him as a second offender.

Lewis Sharp, custodian at the city hall, testified that as he was on the corner of Broadway and East O'Reilly street shortly before 9 o'clock this evening the car operated by Macdonald struck a sign at the corner and came close to striking him as he was about to enter the Maroon store. He said he had asked Macdonald whether he had not seen the stop sign and then went in the store to call the police. Macdonald said he followed him to the store and he said from his observation he concluded Macdonald was intoxicated. There was a second man in the car "slumped over" but he did not leave the car at the time. Later Sharp said the two men disappeared, leaving the car near the intersection and about two feet out in the street.

Later the police arrived and with Officers Haley and Krom they endeavored to locate the two men. Edward Kuehn, now deceased, told the officers one man had gone up Jansen avenue north and one out Garden street. Macdonald was the one described as going out Jansen avenue and the "hump-backed" man had gone east.

Officer William Krom said he and Officer Bob Healey had later picked up Macdonald at the White Duck Inn not far from the scene of the incident and at that time Macdonald was definitely intoxicated and had to be assisted from the place by Officer Healey and Krom also had to aid him to reach the police car. At the time Macdonald admitted ownership of the car and also said he drove it to the scene. The car was left on East O'Reilly street without lights when the officer arrived at the scene and there was no license plate on front. Officer Krom said Macdonald was intoxicated when picked up at the White Duck Inn on Grand street.

John W. DeWitt appears for the defendant and District Attorney Haver and Assistant District Attorney Fred Stang appear for The People.

At the conclusion of this case additional civil matters will be taken up and on July 7 criminal trial work will be resumed. Judge Edward Conway will preside at the civil trial work and also at the criminal term to be continued on July 7.

With July 4th coming up like a seal in a rain barrel it is time for every citizen to brace himself for the fireworks — pyrotechnic and moral. There has been so much flag waving and patriotic talk going on for the last six months that the Glorious Fourth will have to go some to make an impression. However, we have more reason than ever to celebrate our independence this year, because freedom everywhere else is scarcer than fur coats on a bathing beach. So let's all make this the biggest star spangled birthday ever—and I'm sorry that I have but one column to give to my country.

A Calif. scientist claims that "cooties" can be destroyed by infra-red rays. If this is true, it will leave the soldiers both hands free for fighting.

For a good time on the 4th attend the Block Party and Carnival at New Paltz. It is sponsored by the American Legion. There will be a fireworks display and dancing, booths, entertainment and refreshments.

Five Are Hurt Near Highland

Car Upsets When Driver Avoids Animal on Highway

Five people were injured when the automobile driven by Angelo Crucilla, 57, of Highland, upset on the Highland-Clintondale road about 12:50 o'clock this afternoon. Crucilla, who suffered a head injury, will have an X-ray taken to determine the extent of the injury. Riding with him were four women and a 4½ year old boy. The women escaped with bruises and abrasions, and the boy was unhurt.

Crucilla operates a boarding house just outside Highland on the Highland-Clintondale road. He told Sergeant E. J. Hulse and Trooper James Benson that while driving along the road he saw an animal, which he thought was either a cat or a dog, and in trying to avoid the animal the car skidded as he applied the brakes and ran up into the yard of Mountain View Hotel, and turned over landing with all four wheels in the air.

The four women, all boarders at the Crucilla boarding house, reside in Brooklyn, and escaped with bruises and abrasions of the body and head. The women were Mrs. Josephine Corso, 46, Mrs. Josephine Pignato, 41, Mrs. Santa Fiore, 45, and Mrs. Millie Irra, 37. The boy was Raymond, son of Mrs. Pignato.

The injured were given first aid treatment at the scene by Dr. Carl F. Meekin of Highland, who later took those more seriously hurt to his office for further treatment.

The proposed gift was made public last night at a star show for U.S.O. given in Hollywood Bowl. Robinson was one of the stars on the show.

ENLISTMENT LIMIT

The "unlimited emergency" recently proclaimed by the President is now expected to keep National Guardsmen in federal service longer than the year ending September 15. How much longer, nobody knows. The same situation seems to exist with regard to the selective service men now undergoing their year's training. In case of actual war, which is expected by many, it might run into additional years.

Naturally this possibility is a source of uneasiness to most of the men in training and to others destined to be called for service. A lot of private plans and hopes are likely to be seriously interfered with. But there are some rays of cheer.

In the first place, it now seems very unlikely that, in case of our actual involvement in a foreign war, great numbers of troops will be sent abroad as they were last time. There may be very few used for service outside of our own borders, and they may go to Latin-American countries rather than Europe or Asia. Present warfare is highly mechanized, and one machine, whether a tank or a war plane, does the work of many men.

In the second place, warfare becomes more and more aerial. Any war in which this country is engaged, from now on, will presumably be fought mainly in the air and on the sea. Troops may be kept under arms but used as a home guard, or for emergency expeditions on a comparatively small scale.

DRIVING

It is interesting proof of the opulence of this country, and our fondness for gadding about, that 44 per cent of our driving is for pleasure rather than business. That means a total of about 126,000,000 miles driven just for fun. And 4,000,000,000 of those miles, or more, are driven on the Glorious Fourth.

Here is something that the rest of the world would find it very hard to understand, just now especially. We have about one car to every four persons, and 71 per cent of the world's passenger cars. In most other countries today even those who own cars can't afford to drive them, or are forbidden in order to save gasoline.

We may be saving gasoline ourselves before long, and a time may come when families with two cars will be cut down to one, to save fuel rations. But at least we'll have one grand fling. After the Fourth, most of us could get along with one family car if we had to.

HOW OLD PANS MAY SERVE

A little simple arithmetic on the aluminum collection of out-of-use household articles may be interesting. The round-up is expected to bring in 20,000,000 pounds of metal. One fighter plane takes about 10,000 pounds. Therefore the discarded percolators and saucepans may contribute to the building of 2,000 planes.

As a matter of fact, the old utensils are more likely to fill a different role. The scrap metal may be employed chiefly in non-defense manufactures such as die castings, where the highest grade is not required. It will help to ease the pinch that may develop from the necessity of putting virtually all the new aluminum into vital defense equipment.

THE EDGE OF THINGS

It is a patriotic saying in this country, and on the whole a true one, that "partisanish stops at the water's edge." We have lapsed somewhat from this ideal in the last year or two. It has been said and hoped, by foreign enemies who do not know or understand us, that a stern test would find us divided. Now that the test comes, how about it?

If we may judge by the last war, naturalized Americans and older Americans of strong racial ties will "come clean." There will be some grumbling. There may be smoldering resentment among some groups. But a firm governmental policy and a firm public insistence that every American of whatever origin shall do his duty should bring acquiescence and unity.

Unity has been lately what this country needed most. Not a blind acceptance of everything American; for even the oldest of Americans may have their faults and shortcomings, and we live by discussion and change and adaptation. But we have needed greatly, in these recent years, a more general rebirth of the American spirit and a fusing of loyalties, among old Americans and new ones.

As the clouds darken around this country and hemisphere, perhaps we shall find ourselves merging into a Newer America greater than the old. Not to expect this would be not to have faith in humanity, in intelligence, in mere self-interest. For here we are all in the same boat, in a stormy sea; and it would be sheer dumbness, not to say disloyalty, if any of us tried to sink the boat.

Future historians and next century's students of history may think the events of our day terribly confusing, but they won't know the half of it.

Another thing needed this summer is a vacation from fear.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

STOMACH ULCER

A young man, finding that he had pain and uneasiness in his stomach about two hours after meals, consulted a physician who, after tests and X-ray examination, told him that he had a stomach ulcer and advised him to enter hospital for a few weeks for a complete rest where diet and medical treatment would give the ulcer an opportunity to heal.

He decided to return immediately to his home city and consult his family physician. His physician found the ulcer present but advised him to return to the city where he was employed and physical strain upon him. He outlined a diet and medical treatment which he could follow and advised that he rest as much as possible.

Now both physicians recommended the same diet and medical treatment, but one advised rest in hospital and the other that he continue at work!

This was because his family physician knew him best. He knew that his general health was good and that he would be happier at his work, than if he were to be in hospital and have all day and perhaps part of the night to think about his ailment and feel sorry for himself. Also, in hospital he would naturally worry about his work and about his finances, whereas at work he would have little or no time to worry about himself and have no worry about finances.

It is because physicians today are convincing ulcer patients that cure and the prevention of stomach ulcer is in their own hands, that there are fewer operations for ulcers than there were just ten years ago. Patients are warned that if they do not follow the diet when the ulcer is in the quiet stage, it may break down and dangerous complications might follow.

As most ulcer patients are not really sick but are of a nervous or emotional type, any treatment that takes their mind off themselves will take away tension. It is tension—mental and physical—that interferes with the rhythm of stomach movements. It is these stomach movements that have to do with the pouring of acid stomach digestive juice from the stomach walls. And, finally, it is this acid that effects the stomach walls and causes ulcer.

DEFENSE BOND Quiz

Q. Where does the Government spend the money raised by Defense Bonds?

A. This money is spent in the United States. It helps to pay, train, arm, feed, clothe and house the men in our Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and defense industries. It buys all the materials which these men need, thus helping the workers, farmers, merchants, manufacturers, and transportation men all over America.

Q. Can I sell or transfer a Defense Bond to a friend or a dealer in stocks and bonds?

A. No. The bond, for your protection, is registered in your name. But you can cash it at any time, after sixty days, for the full amount you paid, plus any interest due you.

Note.—To purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office or bank, or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

DEVOURING FLAMES

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Some folks here are perturbed about the possibility of a traffic jam on the highways of the air.

The other day a delegation called on the President and urged him to appoint an "air control coordinator," a sort of traffic cop of the air, with broad powers to regulate traffic even to the point, if necessary, of grounding private flying in army and navy maneuver areas.

Trying to get anything official on the situation is like trying to pull teeth with eyebrow tweezers. On both sides of the fence, authorities are afraid of touching off a powder keg. There are more than 30,000 airplanes of all types in the country today. About 17,000 of these are private and commercial planes. There are tens of thousands of pilots. Add a few million passengers and you have some idea of the persons affected by any regulations on curtailment of private flying.

On the other hand, it was realized that the army and navy must have some priorities in the skyways even before the Civil Aeronautics Board came out of its huddle recently and established a ceiling of seventeen thousand feet above sea level for all commercial and private aviation. Above that the skies belong to the army and navy. The board added the further regulation that all planes not equipped with two-way radios and sensitive altimeters must stay within 3,500 feet of the ground.

This caused a little easier breathing in those aeronautical circles that feared the appointment of a traffic cop for the skyways would wreck the private flying as well as the civilian pilot training program—that vast reservoir out of which the army and navy are drawing so many of their flying cadets. Whether it is a complete solution remains to be seen.

It doesn't eliminate one of the army's chief grouches, namely that secret air maneuvers are handicapped by civilian flying. A secret maneuver can't very well be secret if the army has to notify dozens of airport dispatchers just what it plans to do and when.

It is believed, however, that stratification of traffic on a 30,000-mile skyway network will simplify matters not only for the flyers but for those men who keep the radio beams buzzing in the nation's 400 range stations.

How the whole thing started isn't positive, but in recent weeks a lot of stories have been drifting into Washington about congestion as a result of military aviation. One such was that of a kiltish army pilot, tail man in a formation flight, had decided to practice an Immelman turn on the tail of a cross-country airliner. Apparently, the fellow didn't come close, but it was near enough to scare the daylight out of a few passengers.

Another report was that an army pilot, given the all clear to land his high speed fighter plane on a midwestern port, hit the runway just as a student flyer was taxiing his little plane across the field. The army pilot had to spin his plane and rip off a wing to avoid a collision. These stories were numerous and undoubtedly gave rise to the fact that something should be done.

Any mention of a traffic jam on the highways of the air at this point, however, is especially amusing in view of what Charles Stanton, deputy administrator of the Civilian Aeronautics Authority, once told me.

"Our program and our plans here are not just aimed at next week or even next year. We are looking forward to the day when the United States will have 300,000 to 500,000 airplanes. That's just about one plane for every 60 autos, which certainly isn't too much to expect. On that basis, within a 25-mile radius of New York City, there would be 50,000 planes. And when that time comes, we will be ready to handle the situation without any complications."

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

It was in June, 1911, just 30 years ago, that The Freeman published its first newspaper from its new location in the former Sampson building, moving there from the former quarters of the newspaper on Ferry street at the foot of Broadway.

The building which The Freeman now owns and from which it is published has a most interesting history as old timers will recall. An incident in the life of the building is recalled in an interesting letter I have just received from J. TenEyck Newkirk of Washington, D. C., and a former resident here.

Mr. Newkirk writes that he was especially interested in the column "At Century's Turn" and of the one published on June 10 in which the Sampson Brothers clothing store was mentioned.

"I well remember," writes Mr. Newkirk, "that I attended the performance at the Sampson Opera House on the night it burned. If I am correct the show was 'Joe Howard' and the leading man was James Wallach, who was known as 'Hank Wheeler' by his boyhood friends from Hurley where he grew to manhood."

"A number of his friends drove in from Hurley with a team and bob sled, after a snowstorm which had lasted all day but cleared in the early evening. We all enjoyed the play as well as meeting the leading man at the close, after which we departed for home."

"Imagine our surprise when, on the following day, we read in the paper that Sampson Opera House had burned!"

The opera house which Mr. Newkirk mentions was located in it building now housing The Freeman, and from the stage of that theatre were presented many thrilling plays.

Personally I do not recall the old opera house, but I remember seeing a photograph of the building after the fire with icicles clinging to the entire front of the building. As the building was constructed of brick only the interior burned.

I do not recall, however, Sampson Brothers clothing store on the ground floor of the building. In the days at the turn of the century it was one of the leading clothing stores in Kingston. The store was in its hey day however in the Gay Nineties when it did a flourishing business.

Undoubtedly many of the older readers recall the days when as boys and young men they were taken to the clothing store and fitted out with a new suit. As I recall it you could get an exceptionally good suit at prices ranging from $10 to $15 and upwards.

Today in Washington

Ickes Is Blamed for Putting Petty Quarrels Ahead of National Defense Program—Particularly in Aluminum (By DAVID LAWRENCE)

Washington, June 30.—Sixteen members of the House military affairs committee voted to tell the American people the tragic truth about the blunders and mistakes of the administration in handling national defense and nine others voted to suppress it.

The report, written as it was after a comprehensive investigation of what was going on behind the scenes in official Washington, blames among others Secretary of the Interior Ickes for putting petty quarrels above the national interest. The revelation that Mr. Ickes actually had held up aluminum production by refusing to grant electric power from the government storehouse to those producers who could make aluminum right away comes as a strange sequel to the secretary's effort last week to shift the blame to the Aluminum Company of America.

Also last week the country was led to believe by a Senate committee that the O.P.M. was responsible for the lack of aluminum when the truth now seems to be that it is a shortage of electric power. The unfortunate fact also is that Mr. Ickes last February thought more of the technicalities of his fight on monopoly—even though it is up to the courts to resolve this issue—than he did of the national need for power to be allocated to those who could make aluminum at once.

"The situation," says the committee report, "in regard to aluminum is more critical still. The aluminum industry relies on power—electric power. The unwillingness of some government officials to provide hydroelectric energy from government dams in such an emergency as exists today is at least shortsighted."

"Whatever may be the merits of any controversy between these so-called 'monopolies' and the administration, it is the sense of this committee that a squabble at this time on the subject of monopoly is a tragic and sorry spectacle."

Secretary Ickes in his testimony says he was thinking of conditions after the war and that it was up to him not to give any more electricity to a company which he considered would have a monopoly when the emergency was over. This conception of public duty in a crisis puts the interest of the nation at the mercy of an arbitrary-minded official. For it is the function of the courts to say what is or is not a monopoly and that issue is before the U. S. district court of New York for decision.

The House military affairs committee undoes to a large extent the grave injustice done by the Senate committee and Secretary Ickes in charging the Aluminum Company of America with lack of cooperation and recalcitrance. The House committee says of the aluminum company:

"All the testimony given before this committee was to the effect that the Aluminum Company of America not only used its own money for the expansion and lowered the price but of its own initiative trebled its production."

The House committee further clarifies a point on which there has been much misrepresentation by Secretary Ickes and members of the Senate committee as to the responsibility for lack of aluminum now that military requirements have risen to heights hitherto unpredictable by anybody, says the committee:

"It is obvious that neither the army, navy nor the O.P.M. could estimate their requirements, especially of aluminum, until they were aware of the numbers, designs, and sizes of planes to be constructed."

This means that the indecision as between the British high command and our own government for several months, in fact until quite recently, as to what types of airplanes were wanted had much to do with the failure of American producers to be given accurate estimates of military requirements in aluminum and other materials.

The most serious charge made by the House committee, however, is that the New Deal has really violated the national interest by refusing to allow social reforms and pet political projects to be side-tracked in the interest of national defense. This has been all too apparent to observers here for several months who have watched with growing concern the efforts of certain New Dealers—and particularly Secretary Ickes—to build a smokescreen which would relieve them of the blame that attaches to their mistakes thus far. Says the House committee:

"Emphasis over the past few years has been made on social reform rather than national security. As a nation we seem to have forgotten that without national security, social reform might well prove meaningless."

This committee, whose business it is to be familiar with military affairs in behalf of the people's representatives in the lower house of Congress, recites mistake after mistake of the administration in failing to pile up strategic materials, in failing to give industry the necessary assurances so that production facilities could be expanded promptly and in failing also to coordinate the whole job "under a single responsible hand."

The committee report really is an indictment of New Deal negligence rather than the President's ineptitude as an administrator—his unwillingness to trust anybody but his own New Dealers. If there were a disposition now to cure the situation, the committee report might never have been made. But the President has recently given extensive powers to Secretary Ickes who is evidently going to control not only the whole petroleum industry of the nation but all the electric power resources.

To grant authority to men who have already given evidence of their temperamental unfitness—in fact to give it to men who make speeches of attack on business that break down national unity—is not to command the confidence of the American people either for national unity or an all-out effort for defense. The constructive foreign policy of the administration is being compromised by a series of blunders on the home front. The House military affairs committee by refusing to hush up the scandals of mismanagement has done a courageous thing that may prove of lasting benefit to the national defense program if the recommendations are heeded in time.

Growing Family
North Manchester, Ind.—As a grandpa, Melvin Hippensteel of North Manchester was thrice blessed in six hours.

Son Roy telephoned him at 10 p. m. from a Wash hospital to announce birth of a granddaughter, Jean.

Son John telephoned at 1 a. m. from Serbia to announce birth of a grandson, Robert.

Son Roy called back at 3 a. m. to announce Jean had a twin sister, Jane.

Considerate

Elkhart, Ind.—An Elkhart housewife reported a truck driver who brought a load of coal to her house was a flower-lover's favorite. Rather than trample plants around a basement window, she said, he took them all up, opened the window, put in the coal, closed the window and then tenderly planted them again.

Ducked Traffic

Kansas City—This city knows how to treat pedestrians—that's one way it won a national safety award the last two years.

Traffic came to a halt on busy Rockhill road. A long line soon formed. Motorists sat patiently while three mother ducks and 35 ducklings ambled across.

Fast Work

Shenandoah, Ia.—The bellhop at a local hotel carried up the bags of a stranger who immediately started to scan the telephone directory.

"Do you know the Bryte family?" he asked.

"Yes," answered the bellhop. "My name is Jack Bryte."

Jack drove back to California to take a job in the department store which Lester manages.

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

"Quincie Bolliver," by Mary King

Houghton Mifflin have been lucky to date in their so-called "literary fellowship" books. These have included a number of books which are distinct additions to American literature: Jenny Ballou's "Spanish Prelude," Maurine Whipple's "Giant Joshua" and Robert Penn Warren's "Night Rider," among others. Now comes still another, Mary King's "Quincie Bolliver," and this in some ways is the best of the lot.

Miss King is telling the story of the Texas oil fields, but not primarily of oil. The town she describes is not a boom town and is not the center of a great field—it is a by-water, and the oil is slowly petering out, at least on the level to which the wells are drilled. The town lives for and by oil, yet has not obliterated all the accretions of the neighborhood. Not quite.

And in any case, Miss King is writing about people, and not presenting a fictional report on an industry. She is writing about Curtin Bolliver, the drifter, and Quincie, who is his dark and often enigmatic little daughter. And about Judith Paradise, into whose boarding house the Bollivers drift one morning, very hungry and very broke. And Fern who powders her vacant face from a purple can, and her silent husband Clay and the children who burned to death because Fern simply had to see a movie. And Judith's snugg daughter, Ellie, and the little woman in white who could find things and tell fortunes, and the Mexican woman who did not mix with the Mexican section hands and their families. Of these and others.

Miss King moves these people forward through time, beginning with Quincie as a pre-adolescent and ending with the day when her father no longer can endure Judith's sharp tongue and endure the agony of being rooted to one spot. On this day Curtin Bolliver walks out of town, for the first time without the daughter he had dragged about the South through all her childhood. Quincie must stay behind, for she is married.

The book is painfully honest at times. Its imagery is extraordinarily fresh, the dialogue is superb, and the sense of living inside the minds (and hearts) of the characters is never lost to the reader from page one to page 425.

Pius XII Sees War As Punishment for Sins of Mankind

Pope Believes New Era of Peace Will Follow; Advises Catholics Trust in God

Vatican City, June 30 (AP)—In a Sunday message broadcast to the world, Pope Pius XII attributed the sufferings of war to Divine Providence punishing the sins of mankind, but said the "fierce intensity of the trial" would be followed by a new era of peace and hope.

The Holy Father made no specific mention of the Russian-German conflict, but spoke of the sufferings from war at the fighting front and behind the lines—from bombs, machine-gun bullets, blockade and counter-blockade, and from persecutions endured because of religious faith.

The Pope advised Catholics to trust in God and said that means "believing that God can permit at times here below for some time preeminence of atheism and impiety, the lamentable obscuring of a sense of justice, the violation of law, the tormenting of innocent, peaceful, undefended, helpless men."

"It means," he said, "believing that God at times thus lets trials befall individuals and peoples, trials of which the malice of men is the instrument in a design of justice directed toward the punishment of sin, towards purifying persons and peoples through the expiations of this present life and bringing them back by this war to himself; but it means believing at the same time that this justice always remains here below the justice of a father inspired and dominated by love."

"It means believing finally that the fierce intensity of this trial, like the triumph of evil, will endure even here below only for a fixed time and not longer; that the hour of God will come, the hour of mercy, the hour of holy rejoicing, the hour of the new canticle of liberation, the hour of exultation and joy . . . the hour in which, after having let the hurricane loose for a moment on humanity, the all-powerful hand of the Heavenly Father will detain it and disperse it and, by ways little known to the mind or to the hopes of men, justice, calm and peace will be restored to the nations."

Ignace Paderewski Dies in New York

His best known and was written in 20 minutes—Paderewski had another side to his personality, that of a patriot and statesman, and the World War brought it out.

His homeland turned into a theatre of war, he came to the United States and raised an army of 100,000 Poles which later became the largest Polish fighting unit in France. In 1919 he was president of Poland but resigned the same year because of political unrest.

Illness made much of his life a misery when coupled with the tragedies that beset his household and country. Bright spot through 35 years, however, was his second marriage, to Baroness Helene von Rosen in 1899.

She died seven years ago and once more left him in loneliness when only his great love for the piano and his country and his unceasing efforts at both—could assuage.

He retained his title of president of the Polish national council.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, pianist, composer and Polish patriot, was probably the first world-famous musician in history to abandon his art at the height of his success, devoted himself to liberating and unifying his country and then, his program balked by politics, returned to still greater international acclaim on the concert stage.

The masterful fingers of the spectacular virtuoso thrilled millions as they drew inspiring interpretations from the piano, but his greatest joy in life came when Poland was recreated an independent nation.

Spends Fortune
In the historic part which he took in the development, he spent his fortune of $2,700,000. In later years, upon resuming his music, he explained he needed work to live. At the age of 75 he starred in a British movie.

From the time he resigned as premier of Poland on December 9, 1919, after less than a year in office, he kept aloof from politicians, but he never lost his ardent patriotism. Until January 28, 1921, in fact, he represented Poland at the League of Nations and in other occasional capacities. Then he retired to a 2,600-acre ranch in Santa Barbara county, California, the remnants of an extensive holding of which the greater part had been sold to provide funds for Polish propaganda. It was from this home, which he finally sold in 1934, that he emerged to resume concert work in 1923.

Distinguished Teacher
While known primarily as a master of the piano, Paderewski was a teacher of distinction in his younger years and scored successes too as a composer. In the latter field his "Minuet" was known to all lovers of music, even where tastes did not run to the heights of classicism, for its rhythm and melody. Experts praised his concerto for piano and orchestra in A minor (opus 17) and a symphony in B minor presented in London and Boston in 1909. Also he wrote the opera "Manru" which made its debut in Dresden in 1901 and was given in New York in 1902. All told more than 20 recognized works were credited to him.

But his greatest fame was won on the concert stage where he was a master both as musician and showman. When America first saw and heard him in the early '90s, his boldly-chiseled features were set off by dark mustache and goatee and crowned with a leonine mane of golden hair which rose and fell as his flying hands wrung startling volume from his instrument in the loud passages or stroked delicate gradations of tone down to soft phrases that seemed to sigh away to nothingness. Brilliant technique was recognized as his even by critics who were inclined to quarrel with the unorthodoxy of some of his interpretations.

Early Wealth Given Away
In those days he played under strong lights, seemingly oblivious of his audiences. On his late tours in the early '30s, when his hair and famous goatee were gray and he had lost much of his fiery impetuosity, he performed on darkened stages, his figure barely discernible to his listeners, as if to impress upon them that it was the music, and not the player, to whom they must pay attention.

He earned millions of dollars by his concert work, his tours covering North and South America, virtually all European countries, South Africa, the Far East and the Antipodes. The cause of Poland got most of his money, but his other charities were international in scope.

Notable in this category were the Paderewski Fund, established at Boston by a deed of trust dated May 15, 1900, for the encouragement of American composers; gifts to the endowment fund of the American Legion which in 1926 brought him the distinguished service medal of that organization, and $75,000 which he gave in 1929 to French war charities. Decorations from many governments and numerous honorary degrees from universities in America and Europe were awarded both for his musicianship and his humanitarianism.

Paderewski was born November 6, 1860, at Kurylowka, province of Podolia in what then was Russian Poland. Like Liszt, Kreisler, Elman, Hofmann and many another master musician, he was a "child prodigy." He played creditably in public when he was only nine years old and at 18 was a professor of music at the Warsaw conservatory. He went on his first concert tour in 1876-77 but devoted himself largely to teaching until 1884 when, at Strasbourg, he met Mme. Helena Modjeska, the celebrated Polish tragedienne. She recognized his flair for concert work and did much to start him on his real career. Three years later at Vienna he made a formal debut, following it with triumphs in Paris and London.

Career Halted by Wife's Death
His first American appearance was at New York, November 17, 1881. Critics were none too enthusiastic, but the public was startlingly demonstrative and he made a six months tour of the United States, giving 117 recitals. The following season he returned for a series which netted him $2,500 a performance and grossed $180,000—a figure which had been attained by no other instrumentalist. Sure "box office" from then on he repeated his triumphs at will through 16 succeeding tours, with his official career marking the 1918-21 interlude. His first post-war tour of the United States in 1923 netted him $460,000. His final American appearances were in 1933.

His second wife died January 16, 1934, at their home in Morges, Switzerland, and later that year Paderewski announced he had given up all thought of again touring America. In July, 1935, he appeared in a British film titled "Moonlight Sonata." His work on it showed that despite his 75 years his sense of time was not dulled. Four times in two days he played Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" for the sound track and there was a range of only four seconds in the time needed to record the four renditions.

After that he returned to his beautiful estate on the shores of Lake Geneva, occasionally giving concerts for charity.

Paderewski was twice married, the first time when he was only 19 to Antonina Kersak of Warsaw. She died a year later in giving birth to a crippled son who became the father's chief concern until his death several years later.

The second wife, whom he married in 1899, was Mme. Helena Gorska, daughter of Baron von Rosen, former Russian ambassador to the United States. By her first marriage she had a son, W. O. Gorski, who was director of the Polish Information Bureau and later became a resident of New York.

Albert—Oh, no; I just got married.

For the third week in succession, the dentist's secretary reported that there was a man in the waiting room who declined to see the dentist.

Dentist—Perhaps he's nervous. I'll go out and see him.

Visitor (blandly)—No thank you. Last time you filled a tooth for me, I began a serial in one of your magazines and I just drop in each week, to see how the story is coming along.

Visitor—What kind of trees are you planting?
Old Gardener—Wooden ones.

Canvasser—I represent the Mountain Wool Co., ma'am. Would you be interested in some coarse yarns?
Housewife—Gosh, yes, tell me a couple.

Housewife (on phone)—Is this the N. A. laundry? Well, you sent me half a dozen old handkerchiefs instead of my shirts.
Voice—Them ain't handkerchiefs. Them's your shirts.

Sergeant (taking the particulars of the recruit)—And when were you born?
Recruit—December, 1917.

Answering the telephone in the fire station a fireman heard a woman's timid voice:
Voice—Is this the fire station?
Fireman (eagerly)—Yes, that's right.

Voice—Well, I have just had a new rock garden built, and I've put in some new plants, but—
Fireman (shouting)—Where's the fire?

Voice—Some of these new plants are very expensive, and—
Fireman—Look here, what you want is a flower shop.

Voice—No, I don't, I'm coming to that in a minute. My neighbor's house is on fire, and I don't want you clumsy firemen stomping over my garden when you come here.

A local politician noted for his sharp practices, was stopped by a down-and-out last Wednesday and asked for a handout. It so happened that the fellow knew the politician and his record. He was given a quarter.

Politician—I wonder what you'd do if I gave you one hundred dollars.
Lad—I'd count it.

First Boy—Where did you hear about that?
Second Boy—I was taught it.

First Boy—Taught it! Who learned you to talk that way?
Host—I shall put you fellows in the same room, you'll have a comfortable night. It is a feather bed.

At two o'clock in the morning one of the guests awoke his companion.
Guest—Change places with me, Dick. It's my turn to lie on the feathers.

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

YESTERDAY: Henry and Luella Bell have just taken their first apartment in New York, and Henry is taking over his first important job. It's all too good to be true to Luella—even though Marie Mason, the girl who set Henry aside for a radio job in New York, is pretty close for comfort. But hasn't Henry promised to love and cherish Luella as herself... and isn't that enough?

Chapter Four

Big Plans
"AND just as soon as we get settled," said Henry, "I want to show people that the good old Southern hospitality isn't just a legend. My boss says contacts mean a lot to a business man in New York. We've got to entertain—have folks up—make them like us. Be charming, all that sort of thing."

"But you didn't have to do that down home," Luella reminded. "Not that you weren't charming, darling—but I mean people did business with you whether you entertained them or not."

"Sure, I know that. But competition is keener up here. A fellow has to pull strings. We've got to circulate among the right people, Luella—mix with 'em. Who's Who crowd—step out, invite and get invited."

"An other case of keeping up with the Joneses, I suppose."

"Not exactly. I don't mean that we've got to live beyond my income—nothing like that."

"Yes, my Lord and Master," said Luella. But away down deep she was afraid, wondering if she with her smalltown background and old-fashioned ideas about things in general, would ever fit in with the Who's Who folks. "I haven't forgotten that I took you for better or worse, so you can count on me. You know that, don't you, Henry?"

"You bet I do," Henry said. "We'll look up a good negro woman for atmosphere as well as for working, and show folks that the Pells still know how to live gracefully."

"But how are you going to meet all these people?" Luella asked. "Or any people at all, for that matter?"

"The men at the office will see to that," Henry answered. "Already they are mentioning dinners and dances, and such-like. You'll meet their wives a little later on, and almost before you know it, you'll be an habitual hostess. After all, I am the man who put over some pretty big deals in transferring North Carolina and Florida property, and that gives me a bit of prestige to start off with."

"Yes, Henry, I know, but—"

"No buts, sweet! You just see that our New York home is as beautiful as its mistakes, and leave all the rest to old Henry Pell."

"Yes, Henry."

Henry's News
THAT had been nearly two weeks before.

And now Luella and Henry were rapidly getting settled in their new home.

While Henry was busy getting the hang of things at the office, Luella was busy trying to set the hang of the curtains in the living room. Standing up on a step-ladder, she gave a last touch to the rich, old-rose brocade that had once hung in the parlor of the house down in the old hometown.

Presently she got down from the ladder, and stood looking about her.

The room was perfect! All the pieces of furniture which she adored were in place. The chest of drawers which had gone through the Civil War, and which her grandmother had left her, stood between the two tall front windows, its rich deep red woodwork fairly shining. The brass candlesticks which Henry's great uncle had given them, stood upon it.

In the dining-room end of the long, high-ceilinged room stood the dining table which had been in Luella's family for a forgotten number of generations. Its glowing surface seemed to be smiling upon the room, catching the gleam of the rose bowl which had been one of their wedding presents.

"There's one thing certain," Henry had said, "we'll never be broke while we've got all these fine old museum pieces. Think what we could get for them from one of those shops over on Madison Avenue."

"But, Henry," Luella had wailed, "we couldn't sell them! Why, they are all intertwined with our lives, and the lives of our families."

"Gains yourself, sweetheart," Henry had laughed. "We don't have to part with them. Now that your hubby is on the road to becoming an important New York reality executive, we needn't worry about selling heirlooms. What we'll be worrying about is buying more stuff."

Luella glanced at the time, and hurried out into the kitchenette. She had told Henry to come directly home from the office, as she would have an honest-to-goodness home-cooked meal ready for him. And as she moved about she was glad that her kitchen was somewhat roomier than most of those they had looked at in other apartments. Some of those had been little more than a series of shallow shelves in a closet. At least in this one there was room for one of his main street cottages which will be occupied July 1.

Peter Gardner, mail carrier, between Mt. Tremper and Broadhead post office will retire from the route on June 30, after completing 20 years of service. During the two decades "Pete" has travelled approximately 135,000 miles doubling the route of eight miles, six days per week. He will be succeeded by Harry Ecker, Jr., son of the Mt. Tremper postmaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Brink of New Brunswick, N. J., called on Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gustafson, Tuesday evening.

Town Clerk of Olive Bridge, were entertained Sunday evening at Sunny Cliff Farm.

Mr. Belle Burgher of Maple Dell Farm, was a recent Kingston visitor.

THE (MISS) IN A SIGNATURE IS IMPORTANT ON MANY OCCASIONS

Signing a note or letter (Miss) M. B. Smith—the Miss in parentheses before the name whenever the information is necessary—is an important signature on many occasions. It not only prevents an untimely correspondent from beginning a return letter "Dear Mary" but its impersonality makes it especially suitable for all sorts of letters. An example of when initials may properly be used is suggested by the following letter:

"I'm a public school teacher of third grade girls, and on occasion last year—which was my first year of teaching—had to send notes to some of the parents. I signed my name to such notes as Grace Smith, but when two of the mothers began calling me Grace I expected the children to do the same. I wondered anyway if it would not be better to sign Miss Smith, the name by which parents and children both know me. Many of the parents of my pupils are lacking in social training."

It is hardly probable that the children would call you anything but Miss Smith even though you signed "Grace Smith" to their mothers. But if you think many of the mothers themselves are likely to believe that this signature means that they are to call you Grace, it would be best to sign (Miss) G. Smith. To sign "Miss Smith" would be very bad form, as you know, and it is scarcely possible that anyone will call you "G."

If they do, then you could of course write in the third person "Miss Smith regrets to report that Johnny's marks were very low this week"—or whatever your message may be.

Highland Girl Weds
Willett Sherow Saturday

On Saturday, June 28, at 4 p. m., Miss Viola Mae Wood of Milltown avenue, Highland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Wood of Cranbury, N. J., married Francis Willett Sherow of Troy, son of Mr. Merle Simpson of Grove street, Highland, and William Sherow of Bridgeport, Conn.

The wedding took place in the Presbyterian Church with the Rev. D. S. Haynes, pastor of the church, officiating. Music for the ceremony was provided by Earle Van Wyck Foote, organist of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Arlington, and band director at the Highland High School for the past year, and soloist, Miss Rosalie Symes. The church was decorated with palms, salmon and white gladioli and white candles.

Miss Wood's maid of honor was her sister, Miss Marjorie Ann Wood of Cranbury, N. J. Her bridesmaids were Misses Lois E. Welker of Highland and Attica, Emily I. Lent of Highland, and Grace M. Brill of Staten Island, a cousin of the bride.

Mr. Sherow chose Arthur J. Poelma of Highland and Albion as his best man. The ushers were Charles L. Wood of Cranbury, N. J., brother of the bride, George Williams, formerly of Highland, also of Cranbury, and James J. Hilderbrand of Highland and Hillside, L. I.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin and net, cut on princess lines, with long sleeves and a train. Her veil was a full length one of bridal illusion with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Madonna lilies and orchids, tied with an ivory satin ribbon which was used on her mother's bridal bouquet, with orchid streamers. The maid of honor wore a gown of white marquisette, also cut on princess lines. Her headpiece was a white shoulder length veil with blue flowers at the hair line. She carried a bouquet of blue delphiniums tied with a blue satin ribbon. The bridesmaids wore dresses of white marquisette with colored accessories, one pink, one Nile green and one lilac. They wore headpieces similar to that of the maid of honor, with the corresponding colored flowers at the hairline. Their bouquets were spring flowers with streamers to match the accessories.

At 6 p. m. a reception was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel in Kingston. Music was furnished by Dick Donovan's orchestra. The decorations were pink carnations and blue delphiniums with blue candles at the bridal table. About 60 guests were present.

After the reception the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Quebec, and down through the New England States. On their return the couple will live in Albany.

Miss Wood is a graduate of Highland High School, class of 1935, and a B. S. from Arnold College of Physical Education in 1939. In college she was a member of the Delta Sigma Dramatic Society, the "Pen" Scholastic Society, the "Phin" swimming society and the Glee Club. She is at present employed as girls' physical education instructor in the Highland High School.

Mr. Sherow graduated from Poughkeepsie High School in 1934. He has been active in Boy Scout work at Hyde Park, West Point and Honolulu, Hawaii, and has attained the rank of an Eagle Scout. He is the foreman at the arsenal at Watervliet, N. Y.

Relief Load Shrinks

Albany, N. Y., June 30 (P)—New York state's home relief caseload shrank to 212,594 last month, lowest point since May, 1932.

Shale oil used on Swedish warships proved as effective as the best grades of imported oil.

twelve-year-old junior bridesmaids have to be invited to all the social festivities before the wedding, and to sit at the bride's table at the wedding reception? They are so much younger than all the others in the wedding that I'm wondering if it would even be suitable to have them at these older parties?

Answer: It would not be necessary to include them at any evening parties but if there is to be a bridal table at the reception they should be seated at this, unless lack of space makes it impossible. On the other hand, if there is room, it would be very nice to ask two younger boys to sit with them at the end of the table—that is, opposite the bride and groom.

Garden Party Clothes at White House
Dear Mrs. Post: At a garden party at the White House, what are the correct clothes for a husband and wife? We are only two of many guests; that is to say, we are not important guests.

Answer: Correctly (meaning according to formal convention) at a garden party at the White House men should wear cutaways and women day dresses with long skirts, gloves and hats. But since Mrs. Roosevelt has several times said that it is not required that men wear formal dress at White House receptions in the winter, it would certainly seem reasonable to take it for granted that in summer it will be permissible to wear blue coats and white trousers or all white suits.

Al Proia Hurls Eight-Hit Ball, Fans 10 Batters

Mohawk Giants Scheduled to Play at Stadium on Wednesday; Neff Might Get Assignment

Behind the effective twirling of Al Proia, left hander, the Recreationists won their second straight game last night by humbling Soxey Ward's West New York Red Sox by the score of 7 to 3. Another good size turnout witnessed the game under the arc lights at municipal stadium.

Proia, after a near-fatal second frame, pulled himself together and went on to hurl eight-hit ball and proceeded to strike out 10 Red Sox players. Sparked by Charlie Francello and Bill Thomas, collecting five of the 10 hits off Vinnie Lanzetta, the Reds showed some more offensive power in trimming the visiting club. After the Sox took a 2-1 lead in the second inning Red came back in its half on four straight hits, one a double by Van Etten to take a 3-2 lead. The Reds "iced" the contest in the fifth with two mark-

Three Red Sox errors, a fielder's choice on Masci's bouncer and Thomas' second single of the game, brought in two runs giving the locals a 5-2 lead. Two more runs came in the eighth. Francello started with a single, advanced on Grace's bunt, and scored on Ashdown's wallop to center. Jimmy counted when McGuire errored on Masci's bouncer. The visitors threatened Proia in the ninth on Sarsino's triple and Sabatini's singleton. But Dwyer lifted to Ashdown for the final out of the contest.

Cork Native of Spain

Cork is the thick, soft, porous outer bark of the cork oak, which is an evergreen tree of the oak family native to Portugal, Spain, North Africa and most other countries bordering on the Mediterranean. The cork of commerce is not the true bark of the cork oak through which the sap circulates, but a layer of spongy, elastic, tough and impervious cellular tissue that forms outside the true bark. If the true or inner bark of the cork oak is damaged, the tree will die; but the outer layer of cork, which is light because composed of the walls of dead cells filled with air, may be removed.

Fritzi Zivic Ready For Bout Tuesday With Bummy Davis

Champion Came Up Fistic Ladder by Way of Many Hard Knocks; WOR to Broadcast Fight

New York, June 30 (AP)—So much tub-thumping has been going on to prove to the breathless public that Bummy Davis is a little gentleman now, you'd think the Brooklyn Fauntleroy was going to be in the Polo Grounds ring all by himself tomorrow night. Well, don't believe it. In Fritzi Zivic, he not only tangles with the welterweight champion of the world and a fair country kind of clout at that, but a fellow who has turned up with the best right-riches story of the ring since Jim Braddock came off the docks to play Cinderella to Max Baer's Prince Charming.

To put it in more appetizing words, Fritzi is like the fellow who had to go hungry for a week for want of the price of a meal, and suddenly found himself sitting down to a steak dinner with all the trimmings. Just a year ago, about the only thing the majority of the folks knew about him was that he was a guy out of Pittsburgh. They knew he was the youngest member of the Five Flying Zivics, a troupe of brothers given to bashing beaks. It seems there always was a Zivic in the ring.

Fritzi had been kicking around the ham and egg circuit for the better part of 10 years. He'd hitchhike to some matches, even driven a peanut-peddling truck to keep one date. The most he'd ever made at any time was $2,500. He'd learned how to fight by working as third-string bouncer in his father's drinking salon. A couple of older brothers had the call as varsity and second string. He figured he'd gone about as far as he ever was going in the business of mashing noses.

His Big Shot

Then, late last August, he got a shot at Sammy Angott, the swarthy little Louisville Larriuper recognized by the National Boxing Association as world lightweight champion. With Braddock the stepping stone was Tuffy Griffith. Sammy was good enough for Fritzi. He did a pretty fair job on Samuel, and first thing you know Mike Jacobs picked him as the next offering to be carved on Henry Armstrong's chopping block. Everyone knew Zivic was going to get a going over that night in October. Only Fritzi hadn't read

New Yorkers Run Homer Skein to 25; Boston Divides With A's; Tigers Win, 3-1

(By The Associated Press)

From today on it is Joe DiMaggio who must sit and watch nervously as one slugging youngster after another comes up to challenge his modern big-league record for hitting in consecutive games.

The long watch ended yesterday for George Sisler, the once-peerless first baseman of the St. Louis Browns, as he saw his record of hitting in 41 straight contests shattered after 19 years by the New York star in an exhibition that thrilled 31,000 fans in the nation's capital.

DiMaggio Drives Yanks

Jolting Joe, the new king, slammed a double in the first contest against the Senators to tie Sisler's record and then came through with a widely-applauded single in the seventh inning of the nightcap to stamp his name in the record book. Since May 15 DiMaggio has not been blanked, and in that period he has blazed away at a .377 clip to help drive the Yankees into leadership of the American League.

Perhaps inspired by DiMaggio's clouting, the Yankees are in the midst of one of the greatest streaks of sustained hitting ever recorded. In scoring yesterday's twin killing of the Senators 9 to 4 and 7 to 5, they ran the number of consecutive contests in which they had hit at least one home run to 25. Today they held a game and a half lead over the Cleveland Indians, who were throttled by Veteran Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 3.

The Boston Red Sox lost ground to the Yankees as they divided a double bill with the Athletics. Manager Joe Cronin hit a home run with the bases filled to spark a 13 to 1 victory in the opener, but Jack Knott stopped them in the nightcap, 3 to 2, on seven hits.

Detroit broke a four-game losing streak when young Hal Newhouser set the St. Louis Browns down on four hits, 3 to 1.

The two National League battlers, St. Louis and Brooklyn, fought to a draw as each divided a double-header, the Cardinals retaining their one-game lead.

Walters Checks Cards

Bucky Walters of Cincinnati outpitched Lou Warneke and two other St. Louis flingers to win yesterday's first encounter 6 to 2, but the Cards came roaring back to slug out a 14 to 4 win over five assorted Red throwers in the second. The Cards scored eight runs in the seventh inning, their biggest round of the season.

Brooklyn gained a spit with the Boston Braves, winning 5 to 2 and then losing 6 to 2 in the nightcap, which was halted after seven innings by Boston's Sunday closing law. The Braves slugged Hugh Casey for three runs in the first inning of the afterpiece.

Cubs Lose Two

Frankie Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates thumped the Chicago Cubs twice, 8 to 2 and 3 to 2, thereby vaulting nimbly into fifth place in the National League. The Cubs lost the first two of four hits in the first tilt for his second victory of the year. Maurice Van Robays' single drove Elbie Fletcher across with the winning run in the ninth inning of the second contest.

The Giants tightened their hold on the third rung by biffing the unfortunate Phillies, 15 to 7. The New Yorkers counted five times in the first inning, during which Joe Moore smacked a homer with two on. A scheduled second game was rained out.

New York, June 30—Going to be a tough job trying to fill Mr. Hughie Fullerton's shoes—for one reason, our dogs are too big—but here's try:

The Brooks are so anxious to unload Blimp Phelps that they'll even consider selling him by the pound at current prices. . . . Since turning pro just about a year ago, Patty Berg has traveled 50,000 miles and has conducted golf clinics at colleges in 28 states, the District of Columbia and Mexico. Between trains she has played hundreds of rounds of golf. . . . The Broadway betting gentry has made Fritzi Zivic a 1 to 3 favorite over Bummy Davis tomorrow night, chiefly because it's been so long since Bummy put a good fight under his belt. . . . Baseball tradition is being broken at Flint, Mich., where foul balls hit into the stands are returned by finders for use in summer leagues for youngsters. In contrast to the customary jeers, fans cheer each time a ball is hurled back. . . . Bob Feller has spiked that widespread yarn that he once broke three of his pop's ribs during warm-up session out at Van Meter, Iowa. . . .

Today's Guest Star

Victory O. Jones, Boston Evening Globe: "Boston fans who last September were calling the Braves the 'team of tomorrow,' now are calling them 'the team of last September.'"

One-minute Interview

Snorter Luster, Oklahoma coach: "During June, six Oklahoma U. football players eligible this fall, enlisted. . . . seventeen more of our best boys are registered. . . . The only players we are certain of are the ones who are married and have children."

Fills the Bill

Dick Cullum of the Minneapolis Times welcomed Lou Novotny into the American Association as follows: "What we've always needed in this league is a left-handed Russian who hits home runs and sings baritone."

Ouch!

And who was the wag who wagged that if the army really has made a new man out of Bummy Davis, gad, what a camouflage corps we must have!

Utilize Smoke Pipe's Heat

A new device utilizes the heat from the smoke pipe of a house heating plant to heat water for the bathroom, kitchen and laundry. The unit consists of a jacket of cast iron or aluminum alloy which is clamped around the smoke pipe. Cold water from a storage tank travels to the jacket where it is heated and then returns to the upper half of the tank. There is a continuous circulation of water between the storage tank and the heating unit around the smoke pipe. It is claimed that water which enters the unit at a temperature of 48 degrees is heated to a temperature of 130 when it leaves. The unit utilizes heat given off by a smoke pipe which otherwise is wasted.

It's Easy to Swim:

By ESTHER WILLIAMS

This is the first of six swimming lessons by Esther Williams, former national swim champion. Miss Williams, in private life the wife of Dr. Leonard Kovner of Los Angeles, became a professional swimmer after war caused cancellation of the 1940 Olympic games. She won 100-meter free style and 100-meter breast stroke titles in 1939.

Now you're ready to try floating. If you relax you're in for a surprise—you'll learn it's actually an effort to sink. Inhale (always inhale through the mouth and exhale through the nose) and gently push off from the bottom.

Lean backward, extending arms horizontally at your sides. Shoulders should be down, chest up, head back, chin up. There should be a slight curve in your back. Your feet will naturally come to the surface. Most important: RELAX!

Try moving your arms slightly, as if they were oars in a rowboat. Get the feeling of stretching the body from head to toes.

If you have difficulty, ask a companion to put his hand under the small of your back to help support your weight until you get the hang of it.

Now let's prepare for future lessons.

Lying on your stomach, hang on to the side of the pool and kick rhythmically to a count of 1-2-3-4-5-6. Your legs should be relaxed, not stiff. It's all right if the knees bend a little. Pretend you're riding a bicycle. It's important to kick in rhythm, because this is the first step in learning the crawl. Do this for five minutes after each half-hour swimming period.

Don't be grim about these first exercises. If you enjoy them, you'll learn much faster. A couple of lessons from now you'll find that swimming is great fun.

Stand in waist deep water, hold your nose and submerge. Open your eyes under water. Try to count your fingers and toes.

After you're done this exercise a number of times you'll be convinced you're not going to drown just because your head is under water.

Now you're ready to try floating. If you relax you
